Are you on your way to Charlotte. Do you want me to come? I could meet you. I love you and I am d Sorry abot ruining this weekend. After thinking about it last night I realize what an asshole I was. I can't make excuses for myself. I am starting to not like me.

I look very fat in those photos. I am officially on a diet.

Here are some of the photos we took on Saturday. When I look at you in these photos I feel great love for you.

I have been thinking, is it possible that you lie to me (in part because you have no morals or values that say its wrong, which is a constant pain in my butt), but with respect to your children, you lie to me because you fear that I have a different version of what happened then the version you want to tell them.

It is true that I have a markedly different version of what happened... but what you tell your children is between you and them. I would stand by whatever you said to them. If you want to say that Space Aliens came down and took you away... I will stand by that.

It is ONLY between you and I that I say what I think... I would not say that to your children.
Whatever they are, you love them and they love you and that is something to cherish and protect. I have always been their advocate even in the chaos of Leah's violence towards them.
